47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I am very concerned that you are possibly creating policy that would allow AT and T to stop allowing Sonic Internet the ability to provide reasonably priced DSL through the old copper phone lines in my house. Internet access is very expensive in San Francisco where I live. Cable internet is ridiculously over priced.

AT and T is only trying to stop competition as these legacy copper lines are hardly being used anymore, including AT and T. The switching station 3/4 of a mile from my house is similarly under-utilized.

The is simply a ploy to over-charge customers and silence competitors. Do not allow AT and T to undermine the free enterprise system that is a bedrock of our business culture.

best,

Matthew Zito
